Mission Healthcare has Bilingual Staff at Every Level So Clients feel More at Home

- Spanish and English Speaking nurses, billing, human resources, and more, help San Diegans to feel more at ease when hiring a home health provider San Diego County.-

San Diego, Calif. (July, 2012)- Mission Healthcare's newest Home Health Services are available to even more San Diegans, with several bilingual staff to provide patients and their families great support throughout the Becoming a caretaker for an aging relative is an overwhelming and expensive undertaking that countless embark on in order to keep their loved one in the familiarity of their home. What many don't realize is that there are affordable options for in-home care that support independent living and a high quality of life. Mission Healthcare's commitment to providing treatment choices is the catalyst for adding Home Care, to support the growing needs of a maturing population.

"Having private home care to help with my aunt's Alzheimer's disease not only allowed my uncle to take a break from the stresses of caring for her, but provided a compassionate individual to support him as he cared for his wife of 62 years during the late stages of her disease - while living in the comfort of their home," said Mission Homecare Director Jennifer Robinson. "To this day he says you can't put a price on the support and care that he and my aunt received during the most challenging time of their lives."

Mission Healthcare's in-home clinical services include private duty, non-medical home care with their newest expansion, Mission Home Care. Serving all of San Diego County, Mission Home Care will bring the same personalized and exceptional care that Mission Healthcare has become known for in Home Health, while providing a variety of affordable options.

"With Mission Home Care, we are able to provide diverse services, more than any other home care provider in Southern California," said Director of Mission Healthcare Mark Kimsey. "From basic grooming, bathing, and meal preparation, to highly-specialized surgical aftercare, we give our patients the quality care they need, all in the comfort of their own home."

The ability to maintain residence in the home is critical in maintaining independence, and a high quality of life. According to AARP, "nearly 90 percent of people over age 65 indicate they want to stay in their home as long as possible."

Finding the right person to provide home care is just as important as staying in one's residence. Therefore, as Mission Home Care's commitment to customer satisfaction, a new caregiver will be provided until the right match is found, without additional cost to the patient.
